

ABOUT THE EVENT

Choose from 4 concurrent workshops -

A) Using Muscle Energy Technique to treat lower back pain with Rob Granter

Low Back Pain – a focus on the Facet joints - Symmetry, Mobility and Stability. This 3-hour presentation will examine the Lumbar Facet joints from an Anatomical and functional perspective and the role they play in generation of Pain. The session will focus on assessment of Symmetry, Mobility and Stability and the appropriate Treatment to restore pain free function with Direct Massage Therapy treatment and Muscle Energy technique.

B) Pilates for Massage Therapists with Eva Kovassy

During this session, you'll review the anatomy and biomechanics of good movement, then put that knowledge into practice with an invigorating and challenging workout. Comfortable clothes and a sweat towel is a must. Come and enjoy the session and take home practical knowledge to pass on to your clients.

C) A Chinese Medicine Approach to the Treatment of Neck and Back Complaints with Tino D'Angelo

Tino will demonstrate the use of Chinese medicine techniques such as cupping, moxabustion and guasha to treat various disorders of the neck and back. Case studies will be utilised to illustrate various Chinese medicine philosophies in this mostly practical workshop.

D) Understanding the Iliopsoas Workshop with Greg Morling (Morning only)

The Iliopsoas is sometimes described as the keystone of a balanced, well organised body. A dysfunctional iliopsoas muscle may be responsible for a range of musculoskeletal disorders including lower back pain, sciatica, hip pain, groin pain and even headaches. We will address many of these issues during this hands-on workshop and also present some groundbreaking research on the relationship between palpation of the Iliopsoas and the possibility of initiating a reactive (fear) response in your client.

E) Using Thermal (Hot) Stones in the Remedial Massage Clinic Workshop with Greg Morling (Afternoon only)

Thermal stone can be utilised as much more than a mere relaxation tool in your practice and this workshop will show you techniques to address several common musculoskeletal problems with carefully heated stones. It is also recognised that thermal stones reduce the stress a massage therapist may experience in their working hands and eliminate the discomfort your client may experience from deep frictions using finger and thumb frictions.

ABOUT YOUR PRESENTERS

ROBERT GRANTER

Rob has 23 years experience in Soft Tissue Therapy within the Australian Sports Medicine Multidisciplinary Model and has delivered over 30 Conference presentations since 1992 within Australia, the UK & New Zealand. He has contributed to textbooks, worked with the Australian Olympic and Commonwealth Games teams as well as Essendon Football Club. Rob currently is in private practice in Melbourne and is a Teacher in the Myotherapy Dept at RMIT University Melbourne.

EVA KOVASSY

Eva Kovassy has combined her massage practice of 15 years with strength training and Pilates. As a qualified Pilate's instructor for mat-work and Reformer through STOTT, she regularly takes classes and has private clients. Knowing how important it is for massage therapists to be fit and healthy, Eva maintains that regular Pilates training keeps the body strong from the inside out. A strong core, awareness of postural muscles for upper and lower body, and a sense of the mind-body connection is key to the Pilates experience.

TINO D'ANGELO

Tino is a registered Chinese Medicine Practitioner and Musculoskeletal Therapist. Tino's extensive knowledge of Chinese medicine and his unique presenting style will ensure a dynamic and memorable workshop.

GREG MORLING

Greg is a past President AAMT and has been a remedial massage therapist for over 25 years. He has presented nationally and internationally on topics ranging from Parkinson's Disease, Adhesive Capsulitis, Thermal Stones and now, the role of the Iliopsoas. He is a published author and his articles can be found on the medline database.
